

What does “diversity in library collections” mean to you?

- Say hello to your new friends
- Capture your thoughts by writing them on the tablecloth
- Don't over-think them, just write them down
- Discuss with your group and keep writing

Take a point & turn it into a question for another group

- Write your question in a mixing bowl
- (Draw a circle around it if you can't think how!)

Mix it up

- Leave your friends behind and choose another table
- Say hello to your new friends

Answer the question

- Answer the question – capture all of your thoughts on the tablecloth
- Marinate – let the juices flow!

Return to your original table

- How was your question answered?
- Anything to add to it before baking?

What aspect of “diversity in library collections” can you take away to use in your institutions?

- Self-reflection and writing
- Put your take-away in a box
- (Draw a rectangle around your idea to take-away)
